

BC SOCIETY OF TRANSITION HOUSES TRAINING OVERVIEW

BCSTH offers many training opportunities designed to meet the unique needs of Transition, Second and Third Stage Houses, Safe Homes, PEACE Program staff and Anti-Violence workers.

Our approach

Our Training Approach outlines:

- The who/what/when of our existing in-person & online courses
- The who/what/when of our customized fee for service option for training

Here is some information about our current training offerings:

- Self-paced online courses on Thinkific
- Facilitated courses (in-person and online)
 - Reducing Barriers
 - Fee for Service

Our approach to training is adaptable to the unique needs of each group/individual. We encourage managers to work with their staff individually to explore which courses are best suited to their learning needs. The following passbooks are useful tools for learners to track their progress:

- Training Passbook – Anti-violence Workers
- Training Passbook – Peace Program Counsellors

What training do I need to take?

The Foundations in Violence Against Women course is a pre-requisite for all BCSTH courses and/or training. We recommend that all staff in our member organizations take this course as a pre-condition for other courses and trainings.

Some members also like to re-take courses after the courses go through major edits. Here is some information about when each course was last updated and will be updated next.

How can I offer feedback/suggest new topics?

We collect feedback at the conclusion of all of our courses, both self-paced/online and those that are in-person or facilitated live virtually. We also encourage anyone to email us at any time with additional feedback at training@bcsth.ca

Here is some information about what times of the year our Training team reviews course content and the depth of edits at each stage. Feel free to get in touch with suggestions during our quarterly and annual feedback reviews!
